1. We have discussed possible mechanisms through which synchronous activity in one region can have delayed or immediate effects upon processing in downstream regions. Describe one of these mechanisms and try to remember an experiment that supported it!